Re: United States v. Elliot Allen, 23 Cr. 254 (JPC)

Dear Judge Cronan:

Trial is set for April 1, 2024, in the above-referenced case. (Dkt. 13 (pretrial scheduling order)). On January 12, 2024, the Government wrote to inform the Court that the parties were discussing a potential pretrial disposition. With the defendant's consent, the Government moved to adjourn the next pretrial deadline—for expert disclosures, originally due January 12 and January 26 for the Government and defense, respectively—by 14 days to January 26 and February 9. (Dkt. 16). That was the parties' first request for an adjournment of any pretrial deadlines in the case, and the Court granted that request. (Dkt. 17).

In the ensuing two weeks, the parties have made progress in their discussions and are focused on certain discrete issues. Accordingly, the Government moves once more with the defendant's consent to adjourn certain pretrial deadlines as described on the following page while the parties work to determine whether a trial will be necessary in this case.

Event	Current Deadline	Consent Requested Extension Date
Expert disclosures	1/26 (Government) 2/9 (defense)	2/16 (Government) 3/1 (defense)
Government's 404(b) notice	2/14	2/16
Proposed voir dire questions, RTCs, proposed verdict forms, and motions in limine	2/28	3/6
Oppositions to motions in limine	3/13	3/20
Final pretrial conference	3/27	3/27 (no change)
Trial	4/1	4/1 (no change)

Respectfully submitted,

The request is granted. The deadlines for expert disclosures from the Government and the defense are extended to February 16, 2024, and March 1, 2024, respectively. The deadline for the parties' proposed voir dire questions, requests to charge, proposed verdict forms, and motions in limine is extended to March 6, 2024, with oppositions to those motions in limine due on March 20, 2024.

SO ORDERED.
